Here is the roadmap of my International Mobility!

FROM 2019
TO 2021

Preparatory class

In high school, I obtained a scientific baccalaureate and I joined the Italian course as an European section. Consequently, I have acquired a good Italian speaking level. Then, I went in Italy many times through family or scholar trips and it allowed me to discover their culture and monuments.

Then, with my family I also visited other European countries such as Spain or Switzerland.

FROM 2016
TO 2019

At 17, after Highschool I left my family to go in Nice (French Riviera) in order to do my MPSI preparatory class and then have access to the N7 engineering school. I will stay there during 2 years and I will learn English more intensively and make progress because it was a subject I had to pass for competitions.

I integrated N7 in 2021, and I continue there to follow some English and Italian courses but in a more professional way. Then, I discovered My Job Glasses, a platform which allowed me to encounter an engineer who talked to me about his experiences abroad and gave me advices about my mobility. Furthermore, I'm about to do a 6 weeks internship this summer in an international firm named IFREMER which takes care of oceans and it will make me discover the engineering world.

To continue my International Mobility, I am going to visit the UK with my family this 2022 summer, it will be my first time in an english-speaker country. Then, I would like to do my international N7 mobility during 4 months in a european country such as Ireland or Austria where English is a common langage to pursue my discovery of new countries, complete my international mobility and become truly fluent in English too.

Finally, in 3rd year at N7, I am counting on doing my 6 months internship in an international company in order to understand how it works and how multi-cultural teams and different people work together (such as during meetings for example, ...).
